16c			(6b) The virtual world offers new opportunities for criminals to hide and channel illicit funds by exploiting it to purchase and resell virtual items, such as virtual real estate, virtual lands and other high-demand goods. While there is currently no specific regulatory framework for the metaverse as the adoption of the metaverse expands and evolves, the risks of money laundering, terrorist financing and sanctions evasion substantially increase. Obligated entities should be aware of such risks and continue to comply with AML/CFT obligations when operating in virtual worlds, in relation to the activities and operations covered by this Regulation, such as legal professionals with experience in real estate, finance and intellectual property, which may get increasingly involved in such transactions, including when providing legal assistance or advice.

It is important to ensure that entities carrying out similar activities that are exposed to such risks are covered by AML/CFT requirements, regardless of whether they qualify as credit institutions or financial institutions. Therefore, it is appropriate to include consumer and mortgage creditors and intermediaries that are not credit institutions or financial institutions but that are, as a result of their activities, exposed to money laundering and terrorist financing risks.

			(24a) Sanctions adopted by the United Nations are relevant risk factors for money laundering, predicate offences and terrorist financing since they aim to address threats of terrorism and terrorist financing, crimes related to human rights violations and proliferation of nuclear weapon of mass destruction. Therefore, appropriate risk-mitigating measures need to be taken in high-risk situations in that regard, without prejudice to the application of rule-based obligations imposed under the Union targeted financial sanctions regime.	(24a) Listing or designations or individuals or entities by the United Nations' Security Council or the Sanctions Committee are integrated into Union law by means of decisions or regulations adopted under Article 29 of the Treaty on European Union and Article 215 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union that impose targeted financial sanctions on those individuals. The process for adoption of those acts at Union level requires verification of compliance of any designation or listing with fundamental rights granted under the Charter. There is a risk that those individuals or entities may use the services of obliged entities in the period between the United Nations' designations and the application of the relevant Union acts to move their funds or other assets out of reach of targeted financial sanctions. Such a list complements the understanding of who the customer is in typical situations and should not be understood as encompassing an exhaustive interpretation of the term. Similarly, a business relationship should not always require a contractual relationship or other formal engagement as long as the services are provided repeatedly or over a period of time so as to entail an element of duration. Without prejudice to the restrictions to the right to access, the supervisory authority should be able to inform the data subject that all necessary verifications by the supervisory authority have taken place, and of the result as regards the lawfulness of the processing in question~~ Member States may apply Directive (EU) 2016/680, as well as national	personal data processed for the purpose of this Regulation. However, access by the data subject to any information related to a suspicious transaction report would seriously undermine the effectiveness of the fight against money laundering and terrorist financing. Exceptions to and restrictions of that right in accordance with Article 23 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679 may therefore be justified. The data subject has the right to request that a supervisory authority referred to in Article 51 of Regulation (EU) 2016/679 checks the lawfulness of the processing and has the right to seek a judicial remedy referred to in Article 79 of that Regulation. The supervisory authority may also act on an ex-officio basis. Without prejudice to the restrictions to the right to access, the supervisory authority should be able to inform the data subject that all necessary verifications by the supervisory authority have taken place, and of the result as regards the lawfulness of the processing in question.

Purpose is to have a broader definition of "funds" than the one used in FTR/PSD2. In AML legislation, "funds" is usually referred to as a "property" within the meaning of the Directing on criminalising money laundering (in line with FATF standard). There are some occurrences of "funds" in AMLR where clearly a "broader" meaning is meant. If no clarification provided, there is a risk of different interpretations. If introduced, technical re-drafting is needed to ensure consistency throughout the text. Linked to definition of funds under AMLD proposing a Commission Delegated Act, which is the appropriate instrument to achieve the objective of this EP amendment. As stated in Article 38(1) second subpara AMLA, RTS are technical, do not imply strategic decisions or policy choices and their content must be delimited by the legislative acts on which it is based. The specification of additional cases of higher risks cannot be considered just technical w/o implying strategic decisions or policy choices, and L1 does not contain a clear technical delimitation. The simple possibility to have AMLA issue an RTS with additional EDD measures cannot work because AMLA would lack the legal basis for those EDD measures (i.e. where are those higher risk situations identified?)
